WILL HAVE ABLE MEN ON CONVENTION FLOOR

Special to the Indianapolis Journal

Kind-Parker's Chances Do Not Look Good.

WASHINGTON, June 5 .- The fact should not be lost sight of that the radicals in the St. Louis convention will have the advantage of presenting on the floor and in the committee on resolutions two of the most vigorous and able fighters that the Democratic party has known in its recent history. The two men who will take the "TO EACH ONE HIS OWN" brunt of the battle for radicalism are William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Gen. James B. Weaver, of Iowa. The conservatives and reorganizers will find in these oratorical whirlwinds of the West champions who cannot be put down with soft words. David B. Hill will find that he is confronting a more difficult problem than he encountered four years ago, when he made the pilgrimage to Lincoln, Neb., to talk with Mr. Bryan about concessions to the "new Democracy" which should put silver in the background. Mr. Bryan was then powerful because he was to be the nominee on the ticket. He will be powerful this year because he will be personally on the floor of the convention, and he will have the enthusiastic support of General Weaver, who is as adroit, and certainly is a more forceful and vigorous speaker than will be a repetition of the fight for radicalism against conservatism on the tariff issue in the St. Louis convention, as well as erally. Gorman and the Eastern men have spoken free and fair for homeopathic doses of tariff revision, guaranteed not to injure any American industry. Mr. Bryan has spoken for a policy which means down with every scintilla of protection and the making of a tariff for revenue only. This is a repetition of the old fight of 1892, when Henry Watterson and his boys in the trenches routed Gorman and conservatism and made a platform which declared protection to be unconstitutional. It means that Bryan and Gorman will line up their forces for a fight to the death.

While Judge Alton B. Parker seems to have the bit in his teeth and is apparently running away with the presidential nomination, his managers view the future with some concern. Of the four great States that have instructed for him it is realized that sentiment in them is not pronounced for the New York jurist. Instructions have been obtained in each case only after bitter controversy, and by small majorities. In each case also a condition of inharmony has followed, which is disquieting to those charged with the duty of exploiting the political fortunes of the silent man of New York. New York leads the Parker procession. The organization in that State has not recovered from the shock that followed the Albany convention. The Tammany tiger pawing the air, and the organization which it typifies is moving heaven and earth to encompass the defeat of the so-called Hill-Belmont-McCarren candidate. In Georgia Parker just managed to pull through. The instructions of the Democratic convention in that State are unique. Georgia's delegates are directed to stick to Parker "as long as they think he has a chance to win." Under this commission Georgia is at liberty to cast its votes for some other candidate even on the first ballot. The echo of the fierce fight in Indiana between the forces of Parker and Hearst has not died away. Eastern leaders here believe that the Hoosier State cast its lot with Parker in order to escape the "yellow peril," and that had it been possible to eliminate Hearst Indiana's delegates would have gone to St. Louis uninstructed. In Connecticut Parker's success almost led to a bolt. The convention there wound up in disorder. The feeling in the Nutmeg State is still so tense that if the Democracy ever had a chance to win there it was removed by the bitter convention fight. It will thus be seen that of the four States "instructed" at least three of them were landed only by a happy ombination of circumstances. Parker sentiment, it is claimed, is frigid and disinterested. Eastern leaders assert that on the first ballot he can muster only 480 votes

+ + + Reports have recently been published to the effect that party leaders are advising that the manager of the next campaign be selected without regard to the wishes of the President. They are based on dissatisfaction that is known to exist over the selec-Temp. Pre. tion of George B. Cortelyou as chairman of the Republican national committee. No *4 -0.15 one denies that many prominent Republicans question the wisdom of making Mr. Cortelyou the campaign manager this year, but that any of them have advised that the President's wishes should be ignored is so at variance with the policy and discipline of the party that it will attract little attention anywhere. A statement alleged to have been made by Senator Spooner, is cited as circumstantial evidence that the President will not be permitted to have his way when the national committee comes to select a new chairman. The senator is quoted as saying during his recent visit here: "I understand that the President intends to have Cartelyou run the campaign. Just wait, now, and see what will happen." This has "fake" stamped all over it. There is probably as much foundation for it as there is for any of the statements on which the report that the President will be ignored is builded. No man in the party is so much concerned in the outcome of the November elections as Theodore Roosevelt. Party tradition and the custom of many years dictate that the candidate shall name his own manager, and it is not believed that any exception will be made to this rule in the Man Who Made Many Timepieces

and that if he does not immediately gain

his chances are slim.

It will require 633 votes in the Democratic national convention at St. Louis to make a nomination. On the surface, as matters now stand, Judge Parker, of New York, the leading candidate, has not one-third of years. the required number. How many he has covered up under the cloak of uninstructed delegates, of course, cannot at this time be known. But the opposition, backed by the leaders of the Bryan and Gorman forces, seconded by the instructed delegates for Mr. Hearst, insist that Parker cannot secure the required two-thirds vote on the first ballot, in any event. The action of the Bryan Democrats in Nebraska and the character of the platform they have adopted, which evidently was written by Mr. Bryan himself, makes the question of platform of first impor-tance in the convention. If Bryan is beaten on the platform he may suffer defeat all along the line. Already there are evidences of a movement on the part of the Bryan radicals to prepare for a bolt. The old Populist machine is being oiled and put in shape for the undertaking. On July 4, two days before the opening of the St. Louis convention, there will be held in Springfield, Ill., a meeting of the ultra-radicals, and notice will be served on the Democratic national convention what must be done in order to retain the support through-out the campaign of the old faction which brought to the Democratic ticket in 1896 and in 1900 so large a proportion of Popu-

Authentically, it is known that they have destroyed much of it and that, at last, they have been forced to relinguish its control, after wrecking the work of their hands, so far as they could. Dalny came into being almost in a night; much of it has ceased to be in scarcely more than an hour. It proved almost as evanescent as the dream of the Czar which

It was laid out as a child might lay out a toy city on a table. The architect who came 5,000 miles from Petersburg to find this lonely spot planned Dalny in three parts—the Civic City, the European and Commercial City, and the Chinese City. In the first part were the official buildings, the offices of the railway company, the residences of the Governor and other officials, the post, telephone and telegraph offices, the jail, electric plant and workshops, and 200 other buildings needed for administration. The European City, the business center of Dalny, stands on an area of 1,100 acres, and is built around Nicholas place. From this central point ten avenues open out, one of them, Mos-cow avenue, leading to the piers and shipping quarter. All the great powers have avenues named after them. The third part of the town, reserved for the Chinese, is separated from the other two by a pub-

Millions of roubles she has spent on Dalny, and for luxury and neatness nothing but Paris could compare with this new-made city of the East. Its wide well-paved streets, its fifty miles of macadamized roads, its parks and gardens and tramways, its hospitals, churches and cathedrals, its hotels, theaters and law courts, its wonderful pleasure drive, forty feet wide, cut through the hills for seven or eight miles, were eloquent of Russia's faith in its future.

Twice a week the Transsiberian express DETROIT, June 5 .- A Lake Shore spe- left Dalny for Moscow and ran for thirteen days before it reached its journey's end; and Dainy, it was said, would shorten the journey around the world and bring China seven days nearer Europe. Its port admits the biggest ships that sail the sea. at any time of day or night and whatever the state of the tide. The inner harbor was protected by a stone and concrete breakwater, nearly 6,000 feet long, and in the harbor the deepwater area was 500 acres. Three huge floating cranes, worked by steam, lifted fifty tons each; a granite dock, 380 feet long, 50 feet wide was ready for use; another dock, 600 feet long, was being finished; and both had great reparing shops attached. The wharves were lit up with electric light and the channels with gas bueys, and the port of 132 acres was equipped with all modern conveniences. Behind the railway lines, which ran right up to the ships, were roomy warehouses, built of corrugated iron, covering 100,000 square feet.

Russia took Dainy on a twenty-five years' lease, but Dalny was not built for twenty-five years. The Russian architect and the Russian workman did their work to last, and the only stroke of it which was bad is the huge breakwater, which, checking the force of the tide, threatened to block the port with ice in winter, and thus defeat the first purpose of Dalny. There is something in this chapter of the war for the touch of the novelist-the

But the other day and Dalny was not on the maps. Where it stands now, a wilderness of civ-ilization, were scattered a few Chinese. Russia, casting its magic wand across Manchuria, sending its brains and industry along five thousand miles of shining steel, linked Dalny with the world by land and sea and telegraph. And to-day-or to-mor-Dalny, whatever its fate for the moment, is a city with a future-a future not less impressive, one may be sure, than its builders dreamt. PRISONER HAD MONEY

Riverside Park, Carried Three Twenty-Dollar Bills.

Harry Thomas and Richard Nelson, two of three alleged pickpockets who were mixing in the crowds at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon, were arrested by Detectives Haley and Splan, who had followed them for over an hour, and are satisfied that they have evidence which will convict the men. The third man jumped from a moving street car and escaped. Thomas claimed to be from St. Paul, Minn., and had $12.55 in his pockets. Nelson told the turnkey that his occupation was gambling and that he was successful at his trade. having been heard in the street, a great Turnkey Lowe in searching Nelson found three $20 bills sewed in different places in the lining of the man's yest. The bills were tightly rolled and could hardly be detected. Both men were well dressed, and are thought to be wanted in other

> HELD FOR A THEFT WHILE A PRISONER

Floyd Carter, a negro "trusty" at the county jail, serving a sentence for a common charge, is alleged to have stolen a $5 horse blanket while working around the county barn. It is said that he sold the blanket for 15 cents, bought tobacco and continued to act as "trusty" and serve his time until the theft was discovered and suspicion directed to him. He was arrested at the county jail by Detectives Lancaster and Lowe, and was slated at the police station, where he will be tried this morning before Judge Whallon.

Smith Fooled the Doctors.

W. E. Smith, 524 North Superior street, who was thought to have been injured yesterday afternoon by falling from a street car, was able to walk to the curb when the City Dispensary ambulance arrived after a fast run. The man was but slightly injured, and went to his home without the services of the ambulance.

DEATH OF MUNCIE GIRL LEADS TO THE ARREST OF AN INDIANAPOLIS MAN

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.) and, with Detectives Lancaster and Lowe, of the local department, visited Lee's room, No. 340 in the Magnolia block. In a trunk, to which he had given them a key, the officers found over 200 love letters which had been received by him from Miss Monks. A ring which she had given him was with the letters. A note, which had evidently been handed to Lee, and written by a woman friend of Miss Monks, contained an appeal that Lee come at once to "For God's sake, come and see Artie," The letters found by the detectives date back to 1901. With the ring they were

man's monthly suffering may be permanently relieved by Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:-I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain, and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, - she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out." - MISS ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee, Minneapolis Study Club. -$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.
